# MURCIA'S SUMMER CAPS

When spring is coming, Murcia's pepper shows up. It takes over the production after Almeria's pepper for European pepper supply.

The Miss Tonic pepper producer give us some further informations :

"We usually sow during the winter, between December and January. Then it will take around 3 or 4 weeks to get the first pepper. For each greenhouse we sow one specific variety. This way, red, yellow and green pepper won't grow in the same greenhouses."

What's the average yield for Murcia's pepper ?

"The average yield we are able to get is about 10 tons per ha in greenhouses and 30 tons per ha outdoors. In the area, the production can reach 43 thousand tons per campaign and it's still growing". Your needs will be satisfied.
